The large attendance of merchants at leading centers has been a conspicuous feature, and the response to opening of spring lines of dress ginghams has exceeded most expectations. Clearance sales, in which reduced prices figure largely, stimulate over-the-counter distribution. The renewed ativity noted a week ago in domestic packer hides has been followed by further purchasing, with large removals of stock from the market.

Japan, Reassured, Is Expected to Enter the Conference at Washington.

MAY BAR SOME QUESTIONS

Britain Offers Southern Ireland Dominion Rule Within Empire-New Crisis Over Upper Silesia-Governor of Illinois Indicted for Alleged Embezziement.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD.

Japan, self-conscious, rather suspicious and knowing both the strength and the weakness of her position in the Orient, has been withholding her acceptance of President Harding's invitation to the Washington conference in so far as the discussion of Pacific problems is concerned. But repeated conversations between Secretary Hughes and Ambassador Shidehara are serving to dissipate her vague objections and it is believed her complete acceptance will not be much longer delayed. Mr. Hughes made it clear to the ambassador that the sovereignty of Japan can assert itself at the conference as freely as that of any other power, that the United States has no disposition to draw hard and fast lines with regard to the subjects that shall be discussed and that it would be most unfortunate if a hostile or suspicious attitude should develop before the conference begins. It is understood, at this writing, that the mikado's cabinet-has virtually agreed that Japan shall enter the conferer ce without restrictions, having faith in the good intentions of the other participants.

The Japanese people, however, and their prominent leaders, are not unanimous in approval of that course, many fearing the conference will be dominated by the Anglo-Saxons and will result in the strangling of Japan's economic and political development in Asia. There is also a tendency, not confined to unofficial circles, to insist that the matter of race equality be made an issue at Washington and that the emigration rights of the Japanese be definitely fixed. It is reported, too. that the cabinet has decided the Japa nese representatives shall not enter in. to discussion of questions affecting the sovereign rights of participating nations or of the Shantung and Yap questions, which it holds were settled by the Paris peace conference. So far as Yap is concerned, it is believed the negotiations between the United States and Japan will have been concluded and a friendly settlement of the dispute reached long before the conference assembles.

The invitation to China to partic pate in the discussions of Pacific questions has brought on some complications. In the first place it is responsible for much of Japan's suspicion. Then, too, it was directed of course to the Peking government and now Dr. Sun Yat Sen's constitutional government of South China protests, through its representative in Washington, that the Peking government is not qualified to represent the whole of China and the Canton government also should be asked to participate.

Premier Lloyd George, it is nounced in London, will attend the conference unless the unforeseen happens. With him, presumably, will be Foreign Secretary Curzon; and it is likely the dominion premiers will be there too, though the British empire will be represented as a unit. Great Britain has abandoned its tentative plan to have a preliminary conference in London on Far Eastern matters.

"President" Eamonn de Valera had another meeting with Premier Lloyd George Thursday, and soon thereafter departed for Ireland carrying the government's final offer of home rule for the island within the empire, practically like that enjoyed by South Africa.

This he will submit to the Irish "republicans" whose decision, he has asserted, he will abide by. The plan was first given in detail to the British cabinet and received its almost unanimous approval. Premier Smuts of South Africa again had taken a hand in the settlement and had suggested fiscal alterations which were adopted.

Thus the prospects for Irish peace are fairly good, despite the fact that Ulster and the extreme Unionists remain to be satisfied. Sir James Craig. the Ulster premier, after meeting Lloyd George in London, returned to Belfast to consult his government. He declared Ulster would not yield its right of self-determination, that its separation from southern Ireland was an accomplished fact, and that "It now only remains for Mr. de Valera and the British people to come to terms regarding the area outside of that of which I am prime minister." He emphatically repudiated the Sinn Fein argument that Ulster is in the minority and must bow to the majority in Ireland, admitting the unity

COMMONWEALTH ATTORNEY

In the Primary Saturday, August 6, 1921

Rotation in office is both democratic and best for the people. Trusting that I shall not be considered presumptuous in tendering my services to fill this high office "so ably filled by my opponent" for the past thirty years, at which rate only three of Kentucky's sons could perform the duties of this position of honor and opportunity in a century.

FOR REPRESENTATIVE ALBIN CORNELISON

Something of a surprise was reated in political circles when pawere filed for the Democratic legislature this week by Albin Cornelison, well known farmer of the county. Mr. Cornelison has made several other races for Representative and has an ambition to represent Madison at Frankfort. He is a large farmer and takes a close interest in public affairs.

His formal announcement to the voters reads as follows:

To the Democratic Voters:

I announce myself as a candidate for Representative to the Legislature from Madison county, subject to the action of the Democratic party at its primary election to be held on the 6th day of August, 1921.

In soliciting your support for this important position, I appeal to you as a loyal and tried democrat, and one competent to discharge all the duties incident to the position, and with the courage and will-power to do my best for our state and its citizenship.

I have lived and labored among you all my life. I have shared with you your prosperity and success, and am now bearing with you your excessive burdens of taxation (state, county and municipal), vicious legislation and needless officials. The remedy and relief can only be secured thru legislation of the proper kind and from democratic sources.

I have no desire for office unless I can render and be of a real and genuine service to the people-all the people. If you nominate me as your next Representative, I will be elected at the regular election next fall, and now state to you that my whole purpose shall be to reduce taxationstate, county and municipal taxation, do away with useless offices, simplify judicial procedure, and lessen the excessive costs incident at this time to litigation in our courts, and secure a more perfectly working school system in Kentucky.

With you, fellow voters, (men and women), I am vitally interested in all these things and have expended much time and thought on the betterment of our condition, and the best method for placing our great which latter we are all vitally interested), on a business basis under democratic influences-heading for progress, prosperity, peace and contentment.

What our state, our county and our city needs is first class business administration. As a loyal Democrat clique, but of Madison county. it will be my main effort to introduce Adv. that kind of spirit in the General Assembly, and strenuously labor for its growth and victory. How can you get such legislation unless you select men of business to represent you in Begins to Flow 100,000 Gallons Daily your lawmaking bodies?

Many of the antiquated laws in Kentucky against the property and domestic interests of women, especially married women, should be abolished and proper legislation made in lieu thereof in accordance with their rights under the State and Federal Constitutions. This I shall endeavor to do-at least start the ball in the right direction.

My claims for this nomination are respectfully submitted to the Democratic voters (men and women) of our county for their decision on Aug-

ELMER DEATHERAGE

I wish to state for the benefit of the Republican voters that at the regular meeting of the county Committee, held April 4, 1921, that I was recommended by said Committee for this nomination.

I have served as Jailer of Madison county for the past four years and feel I have performed the duties of my office to the best of my knowledge and ability. And if I receive this nomination, I will do everything in my power to be elected, and if elected, I wish to state to the people of Madison county that I will endeavor to carry out the duties of this office to the best of my ability, that I have neither pets nor bosses; my main and only duty will be to enforce the law with justice to all and special privileges to none.

Sloux Falls, S. D .- The great Read Butte artesian well, struck a short distance north of the Black hills, has developed into what is believed to be the greatest artesian well on the American continent. This immense spouter now is running wild, and strenuous efforts are being made to control it. This must be done by cap-ping it, which will be difficult.

When the flow of water was first struck it flowed at the rate of 50,000 barrels a day. It is on a real rampage. The water is cutting deep fissures in the eighty-acre field where the well is located, and the owner of the land fears the land will be ruined.

NURSES TRAINING SCHOOL of Berea College Hospital

The College Hospital Training School for nurses has discontinued the shorter course which has been given in former years and from now on will give only the three years course, which fits its graduates for the State examination and the degree of R.N.

This course offers a splendid opportunity to young women who wish to put their lives into a work which is highly remunerative and at the same time gives the privileges of unselfish service for one's fellowmen. The profession of nursing has come to be considered one of the most honored as well as the most profitable callings open to women. Graduate nurses are in great demana both for private duty and to take charge of hospitals all over the country; and any young woman holding her degree of R.N. is practically assured of a position at once.

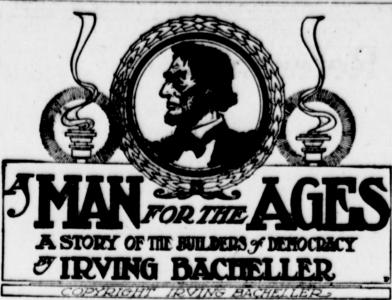

The young women who have the privilege of taking this course are the most highly favored of all Berea students. They receive all their ordinary expenses, including board, room, laundry, three uniforms a year, and textbooks. There is also abundant opportunity for high class entertainments and outdoor recreation at almost no cost. All the advantages offered by this great institution are open to the student nurses as they are to all the students of other departments.

There are only ten places open for the fall class, which begins when the college opens in September, and those wishing to join would do well to send in their applications at once.

CHAPTER I.—Samson and Sarah Traytor, with their two children, Josiah and Betsey, travel by wagen from their home in Vergennes, Vt., to the West, the land of plenty. Their destination is the Country of the Sangamon, in Illinois.

CHAPTER II.-At Niagara Falls they meet a party of immigrants, among them a youth named John McNell, who also decides to go to the Sangamon country. All of the party suffer from fever and ague. Sarah's ministrations save the life of a youth, Harry Needles, in the last stages of fever, and he accompanies the Traylors. They reach New Salem, Illinois, and are welcomed by young "Abe" Lincola.

CHAPTER III.—Among the Tyaylors' first acquaintances are Lincoin's friends, Jack Kelso and his pretty daughter Bim, 16 years of age.

CHAPTER IV.—Samson decides to locate at New Salem, and begins building his house. Led by Jack Armstrong, rowdles attempt to break up the proceedings. Lincoln thrashes Armstrong, Young Harry Needles strikes Bap McNoll, of the Armstrong crowd, and McNoll threatens vengeance.

CHAPTER V.—A few days later Harry, alone, is attacked by McNoli and his gang, and would have been roughly used had not Bim driven off his assailants with a sheigun. John McNeil, the Traylors' Niagara Falls acquaintance, is markedly attentive to Ann Rutledge. Lincoln is in love with Ann, but has never had enough courage to fell her so.

CHAPTER VI.

Which Describes the Lenely Life In a Prairie Cabin and a Stirring Adventure on the Underground Railroad About the Time It Began Op-

When Samson paid Mr. Gollaher, a "detector" came with the latter to look at the money before it was accepted. There were many counterfeits and bills good only at a certain discount of face value going about those days and the detector was in great request. Directly after moving in, Samson dug a well and lined it with a hollow log. He bought tools and another team and then he and Harry began their fall plowing. Day after day for weeks they paced with their turning furrows until a hundred acres, stretching half a mile to the west and well to the north of the house, were black with them. Fever and ague descended upon the little home in the early winter. In a letter to her brother, dated January 4th, 1832, Sarah writes: "We have been longing for news from home, but not a word has come from you. It don't seem as if we could stand it unless we hear from you or some of the folks once in a while. We are not dead just because we are a thousand miles away. We want to hear from you. Please write and let us know how father and mother are and all the news. We have all been sick with the fever and ague. It is a beautiful country and the soil is very rich, but there is some sickness. Samson and I were both sick at the same time. I never knew Samson to give up before. He couldn't go on, his head ached so. Little Joe helped me get the fire started and brought some water and waited on us. Harry Needles had gone away to Springfield for Mr. Offut with a drove of hogs. Two oth er boys are with him. He is going to buy a new suit. He is a very proud boy. Joe and Betsey got back with the doctor at nine. That night Abe Lincoln came and sat up with us and gave us our medicine and kept the fire going. It was comical to see him lying beside Joe in his trundle bed. with his long legs sticking over the end of it and his feet standing on the floor about a yard from the bed. He was spread all over the place. He talked about religion and his views would shock most of our friends in the East. He doesn't believe in the kind of Heaven that the ministers talk about or any eternal hell. He says that nobody knows anything about the hereafter, except that God is a kind and forgiving father and that all men are His children. He says that we can only serve God by serving each other. He seems to think that every man, good or bad, black or white, rich or poor, is his brother. He thinks that Henry Clay, next to Daniel Webster, is the greatest man in the country. drive across country. If we knew when you were coming Samson or Abe would meet you. Give our love to all the folks and friends; "Yours affectionately, "Sarah and Samson."

It had been a cold winter and not easy to keep comfortable in the little house. In the worst weather Samson had used to get up at night to keep the fire going. Late in January a wind from the southeast melted the snow and warmed the air of the midlands so that, for a week or so, it seemed as if spring were come. One night of this week Sambo awoke the family with his barking. A strong wind was rushing across the plains and roaring over the cabin and wailing in its chimney. Suddenly there was a rap on its door. When Samson opened it he saw in the moonlight a young colored man and woman standing near the doorstep.

"Is dis Mistah Traylor?" the young man asked.

"It is," said Samson. "What can do for you?"

"Mas'r, de good Lord done fotched us here to ask you fo' help," said the negro. "We be nigh wone out with cold an' hunga! uh, 'deed we be."

them in and put wood Samson on the fire Sarah got up and made some hot ten and brought food from the cupboard and gave it to the stran gers, who sat shivering in the firelight They were a good-looking pair, the young woman being almost white They were man and wife. The latter stopped eating and mouned and shook with emotion as her husband told their story. Their master had died the year before and they had been brought to St. Louis to be sold in the slave market. There they had escaped by night and gone to the house of an old friend of their former owner who lived north of the city on the river shore. He had taken pity on them and brought them across the Mississippi and started them on the north road with a letter to Elijah Lovejoy of Alton and a supply of food. Since then they had been hiding days in the swamps and thickets and had traveled by night. Mr. Lovejoy had sent them to Erastus Wright of Springfield, and Mr. Wright had given them the name of Samson Traylor and the location of his cabin. From there they were bound for the house of John Peasley, in Hopedale, Tazewell county.

Lovejoy had asked them to keep the letter with which they had begun their travels. The letter stated that his purpose of leaving them their freedom when he should pass away. He had left no will and since his death the two had fallen into the hands of his nephew, a despotic, violent young drunkard of the name of Biggs.

Samson was so moved by their story that he hitched up his horses and put some hay in the wagon box and made off with the fugitives up the road to the north in the night. When daylight came he covered them with hay. About eight o'clock he came to a frame hous and barn, the latter being of unusual size for that time and country. Above the door of the barn was a board which bore the stenciled legend: "John Peasley, Orwell Farm."

As Samson drew near the house he observed a man working on the roof of a woodshed. Something familiar in his look held the eye of the New Salen man. In half a moment he recognized the face of Henry Brimstead. It was now a cheerful face. Brimstead came down from the ladder and they shook

"Good land o' Goshen! How did you get here?" Samson asked, Brimstead answered:

"Through the help of a feller that looks like you an' the grit of a pair o' horses. Come down this road early in September on my way to the land o' plenty. Found Peasley here. Couldn't help it. Saw his name on the barn. Used to go to school with him in Orwell. He offered to sell me some land with a house on it an' trust me for his pay. I liked the looks o' the country and so I didn't go no further. I was goin' to write you a letter, but I hain't get around to it yet. Ain't forget what you done for us, I can tell ye that."

"Well, this looks better than the sand plains-a let better-and you look better than the flea farmer back in York state. How are the children?"

"Fat an' happy an' well dressed. Mrs. Peasley has been a mother to 'em an' her sister is goin' to be a wife to me." He came close to Samson and added in a confidential tone: "Say, if I was any happier I'd be scairt. I'm like I was when I got over the toothache-so scairt for fear it would come

Mr. Peasley came out of the door. He was a big, full-bearded, joviai man, "I've got a small load o' hay for you," said Samson. "I was expecting it, though I supposed 'twould be walkin'-in the dark o' night," Peasley answered. "Drive in on the barn floor.'

When Samson had driven into the bern its doors were closed and the negroes were called from their place of hiding. Samson writes:

"I never realized what a blessing it is to be free until I saw that scared man and woman crawling out from under the dusty hay and shaking them selves like a pair of dogs. The weather was not cold or I guess they would have been frozen. They knelt togeth er on the barn floor and the woman prayed for God's protection through the day. Peasley brought food for them and stowed them away on the top of his haymow with a pair of buffalo skins. I suppose they got some sleep there. I went into the house to breakfast and while I ate Brimstead told me about his trip. His children were there. They looked clean and decent. He lived in a log cabin a little further up the road. Mrs. Peasley's sister waited on me. She is a fat and cheerful looking lady, very light complected. Her hair is red-like tomate ketchup. Looks to me a likely, stoutarmed, good-hearted woman who can do a lot of hard work. She can see a joke and has an answer handy every time.'

For details of the remainder of the historic visit of Samson Traylor to the home of John Peasley we are indebted to a letter from John to his brother Charles, dated February 21, 1832. In this he says:

"We had gone out to the barn and Brimstead and I were helping Mr. Traylor hitch up his horses. All of a sudden two men came riding up the road at a fast trot and turned in and come straight toward us and pulled up by the wagon. One of them was a slim, red-cheeked young feller about twenty-three years old. He wore top boots and spurs and a broad-brimmed black hat and gloves and a fur waistcoat and purty linen. He loked at the tires of the wagon and said: 'That's the one we've followed.'

he asked.

"'I am,' said Traylor.

"The young feller jumped off his horse and tied him to the fence. Then he went up to Traylor and said: 'What did you do with my niggers, you dirty sucker? "Men from Missouri hated the Illineis folks them days and called 'em

"'Hain't you a little reckless, young feller? Traylor said, as cool as a cusumber. He stood up nigh the barn door, which Brimstead had closed after we backed the wagon out.

"The young feller stepped close to the New Salem man and raised his whip for a blow. Quick as lightnin' Traylor grabbed him and threw him ag'in the barn door, keewhack! He hit so hard the boards bent and the whole barn roared and trembled. The other feller tried to get his pistol out of its holster, but Brimstead, who stood beside him, grabbed it, and I got his hoss by the bits and we both held on. The young feller lay on the ground shakin' as if he had the ague. Ye never see a man so spylt in a second. Traylor picked him up. His right arm was broke and his face and shoulder bruised some. Ye'd a thought a steam engyne had blowed up while he was puttin' wood in it. He was kind o' limp and the mad had leaked out o' him.

"'I reckon I better find a doctor,' he says.

"You get into my wagon and I'll take ye to a good one,' says Traylor. "Just then Stephen Nuckles, the circuit minister, rode in with the big bloodhound that follers him around. "The other slaver had got off his hoss in the scrimmage. Traylor started for him. The slaver began to back away and suddenly broke into a run. The big dog took after him with a kind of a lion roar. We all began yelling at the dog. We made more noise than you'd hear at the end of a hoss race. It scairt the young feller. He put on more steam and went up the ladder to the roof of the woodshed like a chased weasel. The dog stood barkin' as if he had treed a bear. Traylor grabbed the ladder and pulled it down.

" 'You stay there till I get away an' you'll be safe,' said he.

"The man looked down and swore and shook his fist and threatened us

"Mr. Nuckles rode close to the woodshed and looked up at him. "My brother, I fear you be not a Christian,' he said. "He swere at the minister. That settled him. 'I reckon he better stay thar till he gits a little o' God's grace in his soul,' says the minister.

"Then he says to the dog: 'Ponto, you keep 'im right thar.' "The dog appeared to understand what was expected of him. "The minister got off his hoss and bitched him and took off his coat and put it on the ground. "'What you goin' to do?' I says.

"'Me?' says the minister. 'I be goin' to rassle with Satan for the soul o' that 'ar man, an' if you keep watch I recken you'll see 'at the ground'll be scratched up some 'fore I git through.

"He loosened his collar an' knelt on his coat and began to pray that the man's soul would see its wickedness and repent. You could have heard him half a mile away.

"Mr. Traylor drove off with the damaged slaver settin' beside him and the saddle hoss hitched to the rear axle. I see my chance an' before that prayer ended I had got the fugitives under some hay in my wagon and started off with them on my way to Livingston county. I could hear the prayin' until I got over the hill into Canaan barrens. At sundown I left them in good hands thirty miles up the road."

In a frontier newspaper of that time it is recorded that the minister and his dog kept the slaver on the roof all day, vainly trying with prayer and exhortation to convert his soul. The man stopped swearing before dinner and on his promise not again to violate the commandment a good meal was handed up to him. He was liberated at sundown and spent the night with Brimstead

"Who is that big sucker who grabbed my friend?" the stranger asked Brimstead.

"His name is Samson Traylor. Comes from Vermont," was the an-

"If he don't look out 'Liph Biggs'll kill him-certain."

Samson spoke not more than a dozen words on his way back to New Salem. Amazed and a little shocked by his own conduct, he sat thinking. After all he had heard and seen, the threat of the young upstart had provoked him beyond his power of endurance. The sensitive mind of the New Englander had been hurt by the story of the fugitives. Upon this hurt the young man had poured the turpentine of haughty, imperial manners. The more he thought of it the less inclined he was to reproach himself for his violence. Slavery was a relic of ancient imperialism. It had no right in free America. There could be no peace with it same for a little time The Missourians would tell their friends of the lawless and violent men of the North, who cared not a fig for the property rights of a Southerner. The stories would travel like fire in dry grass.

So, swiftly, the thoughts of men were being prepared for the great battle lines of the future. Samson saw the peril of it.

As they rode along young Mr. Biggs complained of pain and Samson made a sling of his muffler and put it over the neck and arm of the injured Biggs and drove with care to avoid jolting. For the first time Samson took a careful and sympathetic look at him. He was a handsome youth, about six feet tall, with dark eyes and hair and a small black mustache and teeth very white and even.

In New Salem Samson took him to Doctor Allen's office and helped the doctor in setting the broken bone. Then he went to Offut's store and found Abe reading his law book and gave him an account of his adventure.

"I'm both glad and sorry," said Abe. "I'm glad that you licked the slaver and got the negroes out of his reach. I reckon I'd have done the same if I could. I'm sorry because it looks to me like the beginning of many troubles. The whole subject of slavery is full of danger. Naturally Southern men will fight for their property, and there is a growing number in the North who will fight for their principles. If we all get to fighting, I wonder what will become of the country. It reminds me of the man who found a skunk in his house. His boy was going after the critter with a club.

"'Look here, boy,' he said, 'when you've got a skunk in the house, it's a good time to be careful. You might spyle the skunk with that club, but the skunk would be right certain to spyle the house. While he's our guest, reckon we'll have to be polite. whether we want to or not."

That evening Samson set down the events of the day in his book and quoted the dialogue in Offut's store in which he had had a part. On the first of February, 1840, he put these words under the entry:

"I wouldn't wonder if this was the first trip on the Underground railroad."

GERMAN TREATY IS NEXT STEP

CERTAIN PARTS OF THE TREATY OF VERSAILLES MAY ENTER INTO THE NEW PACT.

SENATE MAY STAGE A FIGHT

Ambassadors Then Will Be Appointed by Both Countries-Berlin Almost Certain to Select Man With an American Wife.

By EDWARD B. CLARK.

Washington.-Congress having declared that a state of peace exists with Germany, the next step must be the formulation by the State department of a treaty with the late enemy country. It is a matter of controversy at shall contain parts of the Versailles treaty.

The chances seem to be that a part of the Versailles treaty will enter into the American treaty with Germany. It is held by the proponents of such a course that the State department can take from the French treaty certain sections which will be satisfactory to the so-called irreconcilables in the senate and which will prevent the United States from getting at cross purposes with the allies, as might be the case if the two treaties should have cross-current provisions in them.

All this is a matter for the administration plus the State department to determine, by and with the aid and consent of the senate. It is a safe prophecy that before the treaty is framed and finally ratified there will be plenty of vocal fireworks in the legislation would not be here to disupper house. The general belief here is, however, that a two-thirds majority of the senate will ratify the treaty with Germany even if it shall contain some of the Versailles document's provisions.

Ambassadors Will Be Named.

As soon as the treaty is ratified, the United States will appoint an ambassador and Germany will retort in kind. It is futile as yet to guess whom Uncle Sam will send to Berlin as his representative. It must necessarily be a man who knows something of the German psychology, and who has been a close student of developments in Germany since the war closed. It is possible, probable indeed, that the President will choose some American for the job who already has seen service in the land to which he is to be accredited.

Already there is advance interest in Washington as to the probable choice of the German government of a successor to Count Johann von Bernstorff. A man probably will be picked who will have a keener appreciation of the American temperament than von Bernstorff was endowed with. He had an idea he was fooling people, when in truth everything that he was doing was pretty well known and in many cases was being checkmated.

Germany Will Follow Custom. One thing goes almost without saying, because the rule of the past almost goes to prove the case. The chances are that the Germans will pick some man who has an Ameri Every foreign government tries to get an ambassador who through some family connection is associated with life in the United States. It is easier for an ambassador with an American-born wife to understand the psychology of the people of this country. Bluntly speaking, a study of his wife in part probably gives it to him.

Von Bernstorff had an American wife, a New York woman who was of immediate German ancestry and therefore probably not as well fitted to be a guide to her husband in American affairs as would have been the case with a woman whose forbears were American.

Von Bernstorff was preceded as German ambassador to the United States by Baron Speck von Sternberg, whose wife was one of a family of Kentucky girls, every one of whom was noted for her beauty. Her maiden name was Lilly Langham. Her husband's insight into American affairs and into American character was looked upon as little short of marvelous, but he owed much of his knowledge unquestionably to his wife.

Mellon Against Bonus Bill.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon has written a letter to a United States senator declaring that the passage of the bill granting a bonus to veterans will increase the burden of taxation of the American people and will menace the success of the program of economy. Is this letter to have the effect of preventing the passage of bonus legislation? For some reason or other there seems to be an impression in Washington that while most of the veterans of the great war are willing that congress shall vote the bonus money, many of them are not over keen about Unquestionably, there are some thousands, perhaps some hundreds of thousands of the veterans outside of those who are disabled, who otherwise are provided for, who actually need the money. If there were some way by which the men who need it could be separated from those who do not need it, and the money could be paid to the needy ones only, there is no soldier in the United States, probably, who would not urge that the necessity in every case should be met.

It unquestionably took some courage for the secretary of the treasury to Hilton, aged thirteen, was drowned in make a plain statement of what the payment of the bonus would mean in the way of increased living costs and increased taxes. Naturally opposition to the bonus is one of the most thankless positions which a government offcial can take. It makes little difference how the majority of the senators and representatives may feel about the legislation, for knowing that they will run the risk of the charge of ingratitude to the veterans if they oppose the passage of the bill, most of them show outwardly at least a kindly disposition toward the legislation.

Trying to Pass the Buck.

What the outcome will be it is as yet of course impossible to say, but the senate has shown a marked disposition to support the legislation almost unanimously, and therefore, so to speak, the buck has been passed to the house of representatives. Each house unquestionably wished that the other would take the burden of refusing to sanction the measure. Each house is timorous about taking a course of opposition to the legislation.

There is a lot to be said for the bonus. Not a man will get the money present as to whether or not the treaty who did not serve his country for paltry pay while hundreds of thousands of other men were waxing fat in pocket in the peaceful pursuits of trade. The contrast between the condition of the men who worked in shipyards and in the arms factories at big wages and that of the men who worked for $33 a month in the trenches is the one strong inspiring cause of support of the bonus bill by veterans of the service who happen to hold positions in the various veteran organizations.

If there had been no slackers and no $20-a-day workers in the great war, nothing today would be heard of the bonus. The government in a way is reaping what it sowed. If the service of some men prominent in public life, including many general officers of the army, had been followed, bonus curb conditions.

Why Was Not Labor Drafted?

At the time when the United States entered the war there were men who pleaded that not only should soldiers be drafted, but that all labor of whatever kind should be drafted. The plea was that virtually every man, woman and child in the United States should be brought by law into the service of the government.

If this had been done the men and women who remained in the field of peace would have had not only their work directly but their pay fixed by the government of the United States. The man engaged in peaceful war work was essentially a laborer for the government, and why the government should not have control over him as well as over the man who was fighting in the field, no official who looks at the logic of the situation can understand.

This view of the case is now g erally taken in Washington, and it can be taken for granted that out of the lessons learned from the great war the United States never will get into a like fix again if unhappily it has to issue another call to arms. The draft was democratic and successful. In another war, if the feeling of today shall prevail, no worker of any kind will escape the draft, and if any combination of workers in the field of labor shall attempt to strike while their brethren are fighting there probably will be something coming to them. Higher officials here say that Uncle

It is understood that if Congress finally shall decline to pass the bonus legislation at this session a renewed drive will be made to make it certain from now on that no disabled veteran shall continue to suffer for a lack of care and cash.

Sam has learned one lasting lesson

Coolidges Reside In Hotel.

Vice-President and Mrs. Calvin Coolidge have taken up their residence at a Washington hotel, thus following the precedent established by former Vice-President and Mrs. Thomas R. Marshall.

Prior to the time that Mr. Marshall entered on the vice-presidency a great many years had passed since a vicepresident of the United States was not a householder, temporarily at least, in the capital. Democratic institutions make it possible for the people to elect to office men whose bank accounts are small. Neither Marshall nor Coolidge is a rich man; in fact, both are far outside of the field which the rich occupy.

The government does not pay its vice-presidents much money, while perhaps one should refrain from so saying, the truth is that at least two vice-presidents of the United States have not felt themselves able financially to bear the burden of the upkeep of great households in Washington, living in which necessarily would mean heavy expenditures.

It must not be understood, however. that the vice-president of the United States does not fulfill to the limit his social duties. When the occasion demands, the reception rooms of the hotel in which he lives are taken and the receptions planned take place. There never was one word of criticism during the Marshall incumbency of the absence of the greater entertainments which marked the incumbencies of former vice-presidents at least from Hobart's day, nor is there a word of criticism of the absence of these great affairs today while Mr. Coolidge occupies the second chair of government It has always been taken for granted that the people of the United States like to see men live within their means, and there is a feeling that, if the country expects much in an entertaining way of the vice-president, means should be taken to increase his salary.

"Outside The Law"

One of the recent motion picture productions is entitled, "Outside the Law." It is one of the suggestive reels that carries the spectators to the "under-world" of Chinatown, commonly understood as being outside the pale of civil law. It is the kind of picture that gives a vast amount of unwholesome material, although technical and specific charges may not be brought against it. It simply falls into the class of pictures and dramas that produce an unhealthy state of mind before the moral is grasped. When we were about to forget the suggestion that people in Christian America could get beyond the jurisdiction of civil law, there came a statement from the attorney of Governor Small of Illinois that "he was beyond the reach of law." This statement was uttered because the Governor ignored the indictments made against him for embezzlement. This situation forces us to ask two questions, "How low can a person fall in America to be outside the jurisdiction of the law?" and secondly, "How high can he climb in State or National officialdom to be outside the jurisdiction of the law?" The charge is a matter of no small consideration but one that has to do with hundreds of thousands, yes millions of dollars of trust funds.

It seems that the State Appellate Court does not agree with Governor Small's Attorney as he has issued a statement that there is no "divine right of kings" in Illinois, and that the Governor cannot get too big to be brought within the jurisdiction of the law in case of misdemeanors or offences. It will be interesting to watch this fight between the law of the State of Illinois and Wm. Hale Thompson's Governor. These are not the first accusations that have been made against Governor Small, for before the present charges against him were brought to light, he was declared to be a corrupt man.

He was the candidate of Wm. Hale Thompson, the world famed mayor of Chicago, and contrary to the wishes of the best Republicans of the State of Illinois and the city of Chicago, he was nominated for Governor and went into office last fall on the great polit-

Illinois has had her ups and downs with mayors and governors. It is a great state with a large and cosmopolitan population, and it seems that the good people make slow progress in ridding themselves of disgraceful officials. Chicago has had many good mayors. Carter Harrison, Sr., ruled the city with equity and justice for many years, and his son, Carter Harrison, Jr., served just as long and as faithfully as his father. Edw. F. Dunne was a good mayor and later became a good governor, but the present mayor has been the undoing of Chicago's politics. He was un-American during the war and is unpatriotic in time of peace, but in spite of the fact that some people claimed his power and authority in the city of .Chicago were waning, he nominated and elected to the office of Governor, his friend and ally Len Small.

Frank O. Lowden, the late Governor of Illinois, was recognized as a strong Governor, giving the state a Business Administration, besides making a reputation of being one of the best war governors in the United States during the great conflict.

If the charges against Governor Small are true, we cannot imagine a more serious plight for the people of a great state than being ground between the upper and nether millstones of her two highest and at the same time most corrupt officials.

County Fairs

Community and County Fairs are agents of progress and public welfare if properly managed. If the natural productions of a given county or of a group of counties can be exhibited for the mutual benefit of all the people, if friendly competition in the production of grain and live stock can be entered into to stimulate interest, and if neighbors can meet for a holiday and strengthen the ties of friendship by talking over matters of common concern, the social and economic welfare of the whole county will be pro-

But on the other hand, if the County Fair is turned over to gamblers, indecent shows and whisky peddlers, it becomes a detriment to the community and a dead weight on the morals of the Berea and vicinity have for many years held an annual fair. Much interest has been stimulated thru the Berea Fair and it ranks among the first local fairs in the State in the matter of drawing crowds and giving the people a general good time. Sometimes it has been unfortunate in allowing undesirable features to creep in, but we have been assured by the management that all such cases have been accidents and that the people this year may expect a clean, wholesome fair with no objectionable features, and a maximum of legitimate displays.

PLAN GREATEST DAM IN WORLD

Project to Harness the Colorado River Bigger Undertaking Than Panama Canal.

COST WOULD BE $800,000,000

Propose Developing Hydro-Electric Power on Huge Scale for Distribution Over Wide Area of the Southwest.

Los Angeles, Cal.-The "world's greatest electrical project" is the way some engineers describe the Southern California Edison company's plan for impounding the waters of the Colorado river and developing hydro-electric power on a huge scale for distribution over a wide area of the South

Edwin O. Edgerton, special counsel for the corporation, formerly president of the California state railroad commission, states the project ultimately would involve $800,000,000, or twice as much as was spent on the Panama canal.

4,350,000 Horsepower.

Generation of a peak load of 4,350,-000 horsepower and an annual average load of 2,600,000 horsepower from four development projects along the river will be possible by a flow controlled by a 500-foot dam at the head of Glen canyon, Arizona.

There the main dam would create a lake almost 200 miles long, extending up the nearly level basin of the Colorade to the mouth of the Fremont river. From this point, the river descends 2,800 feet in 400 miles.

At Glen canyon dam, according to plans, a uniform flow of 18,000 second feet would pass through turbines and thence through a power canal for 50 miles, to the mouth of the Little Colorado. This would give a net head of 800 feet and would generate 1,240,000 horsepower.

From the Little Colorado to Kanab creek, a net head of 700 feet could be secured in 85 miles, which would generate 1,090,000 horsepower.

Additional Power Secured. In the 145 miles between Kanab creek and the Arizona boundary line, at Diamond, a net head of 800 feet could be secured by two high dams. The river would deliver to switchboards about 1,240,000 additional horsepower, according to Southern California Edison engineers.

The fourth development would cover the 120-mile stretch between the Arizona boundary and the Cottonwood valley. This would afford a 500foot head and deliver 780,000 horse-

It is contended that among the results of the project would be: Absolute flood control.

Provision for irrigation of 2,250,000 acres, of which 1,000,000 acres would be above the canyons.

Three hundred miles of the river made navigable.

The area which could be served with power includes Arizona, Nevada and Utah, more than one-half of Colorado and New Mexico, one-fifth of ters of California, with possibly large areas in northern Mexico.

Power would be used for the electrification of steam railroads, as well as for commercial, agricultural, mining and municipal uses, thus saving 90,000 barrels of fuel oil a year.

"I cannot imagine how it got into my stomach," said Mr. Howerton. "When I was a boy I lived in the country and was very fond of swimming. Also I drank spring water. I believe I may have swallowed a fish egg or a very small minnow, which has grown to maturity in my stomach. In the last few years I have been a sufferer from stomach trouble and often have felt the disturbing sensation that something was moving around inside."

The camp that was conducted on the Berea Fair ground last week was one of the best that has yet been held in the State. Ninety-five boys and girls from Rockcastle, Pulaski, and Southern Madison counties were enrolled. These were all country boys and girls, members of some corn, pig, poultry, tomato or other club organized to do a definite work. There were five club leaders and twelve special instructors. It will give an idea of the kind of work that was done to name the staff that was responsible for the conduct of the camp:

ginning on Monday and breaking on Friday. The cost to the campers was a fee of fifty cents and a partial supply of food for the donation of our camp.

The Gang Idea

Early in the week the campers were divided into four groups which were called tribes, each being given the name of a tribe of Indians-Creeks, Chickasaws, Choctaws and Cherokees. These groups continued week. Various contests were arranged for them. Indeed their whole conduct and the spirit in which they went about things were graded during the week, the tribe making the highest mark being decorated at the close of the week.

The Class Work

From 8 to 11 o'clock each day the time was devoted to class work. Classes of thirty minutes each were conducted in Four H Development, Nature Study, Home Club Plans, Health and First Aid, Agriculture and Home Economics.

The Daily Lecture

At eleven o'clock each day an inspirational lecture was given to the whole group. The three lecturers for these occasions were Professor Everett Dix, Howard E. Taylor, and C. A. Mahan.

Health Examination

The Red Cross maintained on the grounds during the camp a tent in which were abundant supplies of health literature furnished by the Red Cross and State Board of Health. In this tent the medical examinations were made by Dr. J. G. Bosley and Dr. B. F. Robinson, with the assistance of Mrs. Walter White, the Red Cross nurse. It is said by some that the results of these medical examinations would be worth the entire cost of the camp.

Altogether the boys and girls' Agricultural camp is one of the most beneficial affairs that has ever been conducted at Berea. We hope that it may be repeated and that many boys and girls may have the advantages and instructions these camps.

III. Preaching the Word of God In Cyprus (vv. 4, 5).

We are not told as to why they first went to Cyprus, but we infer that it was because it was the home of Barnabas. It is most natural that those who have heard good news should go with it first to their kindred and friends. As they went forth they preached the Word of God; not civic righteousness, current history, philosophy, etc. The great need today is Spirit-called and Spirit-filled men preaching God's Word. IV. Withstood by Elymas the Sorcerer (vv. 6-12).

When Barnabas and Saul by invitation were telling Sergius Paulus of the Word of God. Etymas maliciously sought to turn his mind from the faith. This is the first obstacle they encountered. This opposer is the same one who came to Adam in Eden and to Jesus in the wilderness. He is the enemy of God and man. He now seeks to bar the gospel as it enters upon its career of the conversion of the heathen. Saul denounced him in the most scathing terms, calling him the child of the devil, full of guile and villainy, and the right ways of the Lard

Happily, the deputy heeded Saul's teaching and believed the gospel. It was in this connection that Saul's

V. In the Synagogue at Antioch in Pisidia (vv. 15, 16).

From Paphos Paul and Barnabas went northward to Perga. From Perga they went into Antioch in Pisidia, where they entered the synagogue on the Sabbath day. Though he was sent to the Gentiles he does not depart from the order of beginreading of the Scriptures, upon the invitation of the rulers. Paul delivered the discourse recorded in verses 17-41. This sermon is worthy of careful study. It consists of four parts: (1) Historical (vv. 17-23); apologetical (vv. 24-37); (3) doctrinal, (vv. sets forth the missionary message for all times and lands. should ever be the same. In this sermon he presented the glorified and risen Christ as the Savior from sin, basing his proof upon the testimony of living witnesses and the inspired

VI. The Effect of the Sermon (vv. 42-52).

Many of the Jews and proselytes requested them to speak to them again. Almost the whole city came to hear the Word of God the next Sabbath. This great crowd incited the jealousy of the Jews. This jealousy could not long be restrained; it broke out in open opposition. This opposition was in turn answered by Paul's rejection of them and turning to the Gentiles.

IMPROVEMENTS

The improvements consist of a very substantial brick residence of eight rooms, two halls and porches, beautiful lawn with plenty of shade, small orchard, good garden, cistern ning with the Jews. After the usual nities are all very much interested in at door, and outbuildings. Fences good.

DESCRIPTION OF LAND

This farm has long pike frontage on Menalus pike, and lays in almost a square; 35 acres under cultivation this year, the balance in blue grass sod, six acres in bottom land. The one thing about this land is that it is all good—no waste land. Every inch of this land will produce sufficiently to net you an income, not just a mere living. When we say GOOD LAND we mean GOOD LAND, and there is none better than this. If you doubt this we can in 20 minutes prove to you we are right.

There are 150 big walnut trees standing on this farm. That is a good indication of good land, well watered by Moore and Silver creeks.

NEW DEFENSE FOR HONOLULU

Big Guns to Be Rushed by Rail About Island of Oahu-Plan New Fort.

Honolulu, Hawaii.-Two important announcements of further plans for the defense of Oahu, the island on which Honolulu is situated, were made recently by army headquarters here. One calls for formation of a railway artillery battallon and another contemplates mand the entrance to Pearl harbor, the navy's great base six miles from this city.

Twelve-inch mortars will be used by the railway battalion and the tracks of the Oahu railroad will be utilized on the island not touched by the railways at present, spur tracks will be laid, so that, in case of emergency, heavy guns may be rushed to any section of the coast line as fast as locomotives can baul them. The railway mortars have a range of 15,000 yards.

ernment, if it gets it, from Ireland as a whole. Up to date De Valera and his colleagues have not abandoned this Sinn Fein position. It remains to be seen which side will yield. For the moment, at least, the attitude of the people of southern Ireland is more peace ful and conciliatory than that of the northern Irish.

Upper Silesia comes to the front again, with prospects of renewed trouble which may result in another outbreak of hostilities and even in a break among the entente allies. Convinced that the situation there was extremely critical, France asked Great Britain and Italy to join her in sending reinforcements to the region. The British foreign office repiled belittling the danger and proposing that a meeting of the supreme council be held on July 27. To this Premier Briand responded with a note announcing that France intended to reinforce the Upper Silesian contingent and again asking Great Britain and Italy to follow suit, insisting on the necessity of a committee of experts to hold a meeting immediately to investigate Upper Silesia and to draft a frontier, and announcing that France was not prepared for a supreme council meeting until the experts have reached a decision, and the allies are in a position to enforce the decision as to the Upper Silesian boundary by adequate forces in the disputed territory. Dispatches from Paris said 10,000 troops were to be sent at once to Upper Stlesia, with artillery, tanks and planes.

There was a chance that America would be called on to mediate. Our position in rejoining the supreme council was that we would take no part in questions affecting territorial and frontier adjustments unless general peace were threatened. Some diplomats believe that point has been reached. Naturally there is intense satisfaction in German official circles over the prospects of a split among members of the entente.

The advance of the Greeks in Asia Minor has been continuous, the Turk Nationalists retiring before it without putting up many serious fights. Last King Constantine's forces reached and occupied the important railway junction of Eski-Shehr. This cuts the rail route to Angora, the ways already have been destroyed. Military experts in Constantinople believe the Turks plan to draw on the Greeks until their lines are unduly extended and then try to exhaust them by a series of irregular attacks.

In Albania the Mirdites, a Christian tribe, have proclaimed an independent republic and elected a president. The Albanian government has ordered a general mobilization to repress the rebellion of the Mirdites.

The United States has been sounding the German government on the proposal to negotiate a separate peace accordance with President Harding's program. The pact, it is understood, will embody such features of the Versatlles treaty as are not reof settlement of war accounts to be virtually identical with those imposed by the allies. It is believed Berlin will see the wasdom of signing such a treaty without great delay.

Meanwhile a movement for the recall of the American troops in Germany has started in the senate. Mr. Borah introduced a resolution calling on the secretary of war for all data as to the size of the army of occupation, the cost of maintaining it and the payments of the German government for its expenses. The senate promptly adopted the resolution without a roll call or a dissenting voice.

The tariff bill, having been passed by the house, is now before the senate but if present plans are followed that body will not act on it finally until legislation to revive taxes has been enacted. This is in accord with the understood wish of the administration. The prospect for considerably lower taxes, however, was dimmed somewhat by the rather startling statements made by A. D. Lasker, new chairman of the shipping board. He asserted that his investigations have revealed the fact that the board operated last fiscal year at a net loss of $380,000,000, and predicted that during the present fiscal year the loss from operations alone will be $150, 000,000. Mr. Lasker said the records of the board were in deplorable condition and that if it had been a private business concern the corporation would have been in receiver's hands long ago. He indicated that approoriations of $300,000,000 would be needed for this year, out tater ne asked congress for only $125,000,000 for the next six months. The formal request for this sum was made through Director of Budget Dawes and with the approval of President Harding. Prodded to quick action by a pre liminary report of the special commission on soldiers' relief, which scored the government for neglect of disabled veterans, the senate on Wednesday passed the Sweet bill without a dissenting vote. An amendment was adopted designed to transfer from the ex-service men to the government the burden of proof in establishing the origin of disabilities. In some other respects the bill as passed by the house was altered. As passed by the senate the measure provides: For the creation of a veterans' bureau, responsible directly to the President, consol idating all soldier relief agencies; for the decentralization of the compensation and insurance machinery now operated by the war risk bureau, and for the liberalization of compensation awards so as to relieve any former soldier suffering from ailments for which the war service was responsible.

Director of the Budget Dawes has informed President Harding that it will be possible to save about $112,-512.628 in the government expenditures for the current year. This will be done mainly through curtailing departmental forces and equipment, and the work toward this end already is well under way. The largest estimated saving-$30,342,119-will be in the Treasury department. In the Interior department it will be $19,827,101; war risk bureau, $16,534,523; War department. $15,000,000; Navy department, $10,047,891; postal service, $14,920,-421, and so on through the list.

Illinois provides a sensation of considerable magnitude through the indictment of her governor, Len Small, and lieutenant governor, Fred E. Sterling. These officials, together with Verne Curtis, a banker, are accused of fraud, conspiracy and embezzlement of state funds, the alleged crimes being committed, according to the charges, when Small and Sterling held the position of state treasurer. Briefly, it to charged that Small and Sterling made loans of millions of dollars of state funds to Curtis' so-called bank, which had not functioned as a bank since 1908; that Curtis purchased with the money short-time notes of the Chicago packers which netted him about 8 per cent interest; that the state received only 2 per cent on the loans made to Curtis, and that the accused men shared the rest of the profits. Of course, both Small and Sterling protest their entire innocence, the gover-nor laying the whole affair to the schemes of his political enemies, whose fight on him, both before and since his election, has been hitter.
